Foreword

A portion of the continuing service mission of the Bureau of Economic and Business Research of the University of Illinois is to provide economic data to businesses, governments, students, the faculty, and the general public. It is within the context of that mission that the Illinois Statistical Abstract emerges.

The 1990 Illinois Statistical Abstract is a reasonably comprehensive compilation of economic data relating to Illinois, and to political subdivisions within the state. The Abstract can be particularly useful to those interested in industry-specific developments regarding employment, unemployment, and earnings. For these data there is detailed coverage for counties and for metropolitan areas, as well as for Illinois as a whole and for the United States. Annual data are given for the five-year period ending in the most recent year for which data are available (typically 1988); decade-earlier data are also presented to facilitate longer-term comparisons.

The 1990 Abstract resulted from the efforts of many. Susan Hartter provided the chief organizing force. She prodded the staff into providing data and copy and otherwise attempted to maintain the publication schedule; beyond that, she supervised the formatting of the publication and handled its printing. Research assistants within the Bureau also played important roles. Jim Bruehler and Robert Hartwig bore the chief burden of bringing the data together from its disparate sources. Paul Bishop, Martha Green, and Mary Laschober contributed their expertise on specific sections of the Abstract. Barbara Burch designed the cover and title page.

The 1990 Illinois Statistical Abstract is also available on diskette. It may be ordered through the Bureau of Economic and Business Research.

Introduction

The 1990 Illinois Statistical Abstract presents statistics on the Illinois economy to interested data users. An at-a-glance view of the Illinois economy in 1989 is presented in Section 1. It provides the latest available annual data on Illinois income, earnings, transfer payments, and employment by major industry, as well as county-level population estimates. This section also presents square mileage and population density data for all Illinois counties. The latest unemployment rates for the first eight months of 1990 are also included. The remainder of the book presents historical statistics for 1978 and for the years 1984-1988 or 1989 (the most recent data available for these series) to provide a view of the Illinois economy over time.

Comparison to 1989 Abstract

The data series provided in the 1990 Statistical Abstract are, for the most part, updated versions of those presented in the 1989 edition. The table on the facing page shows changes in the location of the data from the 1989 edition. Section 17, Exports, and Section 18, Crime and Law Enforcement, are new with this volume.

Employment data presented in sections 5, 6, 7, 9, and 10 are not necessarily comparable because the method used to collect the data differs across sources. A brief discussion of these employment source differences is presented in the Note at the end of this Introduction.

The Census of Manufactures and Census of Population data are identical to those presented in the 1989 Abstract. The Census of Manufactures is taken every five years, the most recent year being 1987. However, 1987 census data broken down at the county level are not available at this writing. As a result, the data presented by county runs through 1982. The Census of Population is conducted every ten years; 1980 is the most recent population census year for which data are available. The 1990 Census of Population, taken in April, will not yield final county-level data until 1992. Census data for 1970 and 1980 are presented in Section 11. County population estimates for 1983-1988, the most recent data available, are presented in Section 1.

Note on Sources of Employment Data

As mentioned, the employment data presented in Sections 5, 6, 7, 9, and 10 differ because they are collected using various methods of data collection. As a result, these data are not necessarily comparable. Specifically, employment figures included in this volume are obtained in one of three ways:

1. Administrative record data (such as unemployment insurance records or Internal Revenue Service forms, see section 5);
2. Household survey data (see section 6); or
3. Establishment or payroll data (see sections 7, 9 and 10)

These data collection methods differ in at least three ways: coverage (e.g. which categories of workers are included), how workers who hold more than one job are counted, and how they account for unpaid leave from work in defining employment.

Coverage

Household survey data include the employment of wage and salary workers, self-employed workers, and members of the armed forces. Civilian employment in both agricultural and nonagricultural industries is included. The data presented in section 5, based on administrative records, cover these same categories of workers as well. Payroll data, on the other hand, includes the employment of nonagricultural wage and salary workers only.

Multiple Job Holding

In household survey data, employed individuals are counted only once even if they hold more than one job. However, payroll data and administrative record data count individuals who worked in more than one establishment during the survey period each time their names appeared on an establishment payroll.

Unpaid Leave from Work

Household survey data count an individual as employed if he holds a job, even if not being paid by the employer for the time off during the survey week. In establishment data, an individual is included among employees only if he is on the payroll during the survey week.

Section 2

Personal Income & Non-Farm Earnings

Data: Section 2 presents county data for 1978 and 1984-1988 on total personal income, non-farm personal income, farm income, and per capita personal income. This section also provides county data on earnings of major sectors of the economy including agriculture, manufacturing, services, and government. Categories are based on 1972 Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) codes.

Personal income is the income received from all sources by the residents of a given area; it is a broader measure than earnings.

Earnings include only labor income and exclude income sources such as interest, dividends, and transfer payments.

Source: Table CA5: "Personal Income by Major Source and Earnings by Major Industry," Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), US Department of Commerce.

Comparability: The data are comparable to the data in Section 1 of the 1989 Abstract.

Footnotes: [D] Not shown to avoid disclosure of confidential information; estimates are included in totals.

[L] Less than $50,000. Estimates are included in totals.

Section 3

Farm Income

Data: Section 3 presents data on the major components of farm income and expenditures in Illinois for the years 1978 and 1984 through 1988.

Farm Income is composed of sales of agricultural commodities by farmers, government payments to farmers, and other income such as rents.

Farm Expenditures are purchases of seed, livestock, seed, fertilizer, petroleum products, and hired farm labor.

Section 4

Transfer Payments

Data: Section 4 presents county data for 1978 and 1984 to 1988 on transfer payments. Transfer payments include government payments to individuals (i.e., unemployment insurance, veterans' benefits) and payments to nonprofit institutions.

Transfer Payments are a component of personal income but are not included in earnings.

Source: Table CA35: "Transfer Payments," Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA), US Department of Commerce.

Comparability: These data are comparable to data in Section 3 of the 1989 Abstract.

Footnotes: [L] Less than $50,000. Estimates are included in totals.

*Illinois portion only.

Section 6

Employment, Labor Force Statistics

Data: Section 6 presents data on the labor force, employment, unemployment, and the unemployment rates for counties of Illinois.

The labor force includes all persons who are 16 years of age or older who are employed or actively looking for work.

Employed persons include full- and part-time workers, those who worked 15 or more hours in a family business, and those who had jobs but were temporarily absent for economic reasons. Employed persons with more than one job are counted in the job in which they work the most hours.

Unemployed persons are defined as those not at work during the survey week but who had attempted to find work during the last four weeks and were still looking.

The unemployment rate is computed as: $\text{unemployed persons} / \text{labor force}$.

Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics, US Department of Labor. These data were compiled from a survey of approximately 60,000 households conducted by the Bureau of the Census.

Comparability: These data are comparable to data in Section 5 of the 1989 Abstract.

Section 6 data are not directly comparable to employment data in Sections 5, 7, 9, and 10 because the methods used to collect the data and the definition of employment differ across sources. For an explanation of these differences, refer to the note in the Introduction of this book.

Footnotes: *Illinois portion only.

(1979 = 100)

Section 7

Employment, Weekly Earnings and Weekly Hours

Data: Section 7 presents employment data broken down by industry. It also includes weekly earnings and weekly hours where available. Establishment data such as these count a person each time his name appears on a payroll. Thus, a person holding two jobs, with his name appearing on two payrolls, would be counted twice.

Not all counties and statistical areas in Illinois are presented in the tables in this section. No data were available for the geographic areas that are missing.

Source: These data were obtained from the BLS 790 report on employment, hours, and earnings published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, US Department of Labor. Figures are derived from a monthly survey of approximately 13,000 establishments.

Comparability: The data are comparable to data in Section 6 of the 1989 Abstract.

Section 7 data are not directly comparable to employment data in Sections 5, 6, 9, and 10 because the methods used to collect the data and the definition of employment differ across sources. For an explanation of these differences, refer to the note in the Introduction of this book.

Footnotes: *Illinois portion only.

(NA) Data not available.

Section 8

Gross State Product

Data: Section 8 presents data on Illinois Gross State Product by industry for 1979 and 1985-1989. Gross State Product (GSP) is the counterpart of US Gross Domestic Product and is regarded as the most comprehensive measure of production for a state. GSP is made up of four components: wage and salaries of employees, proprietors' income, indirect business taxes (such as sales and property taxes levied by state and local government), and capital charges (such as depreciation).

Current dollar GSP provided in Table 8.1 reflects the market value of the state's output.

Constant dollar GSP provided in Table 8.2 reflects the physical volume of the state's output.

Source: Bureau of Economic Analysis, US Department of Commerce.

Comparability: Data in this section are comparable to the Gross State Product data included in Section 7 of the 1989 Abstract. At press time, data at the two-digit SIC level were not available for the years 1987-1989.

Footnotes: (L) Less than $1 million. Amounts included in totals.
(NA) Data not available.

Section 9

Census of Manufacturers

Data: Section 8 presents data on manufacturing industries, by industry, for the State of Illinois for census years 1967, 1972, 1977, and 1982.

Not all counties and statistical areas in Illinois are presented in the tables in this section. No data were available for the geographic areas that are missing.

All Establishment figures are expressed in natural units.

All Employee figures are expressed in thousands.

All Payroll figures are expressed in millions of dollars.

All Hours figures are expressed in millions.

All Value Added figures are expressed in millions of dollars.

All Cost of Materials figures are expressed in millions of dollars.

All Value of Shipments figures are expressed in millions of dollars.

All New Capital Expenditure figures are expressed in millions of dollars.

Source: Geographic Area Series, 1982 Census of Manufactures, Bureau of the Census, US Department of Commerce. These data reflect payroll establishment data collected in response to mailed census forms.

Comparability: These data are identical to the Census of Manufactures data in Section 8 of the 1989 Abstract. The 1987 Census of Manufactures by county was not available at press time. Data should be available by late 1990 or early 1991.

Section 9 data are not directly comparable to employment data in Sections 5, 6, 7, and 10 because the methods used to collect the data and the definition of employment differ across sources. For an explanation of these differences, refer to the note in the Introduction of this book.

Footnotes: A 150-249 employees.

B 250-499 employees.

C 500-999 employees.

D Withheld to avoid disclosure of confidential data.

E 1,000-2,499 employees.

Z Figures round to zero.

(NA) Data not available.

*Illinois portion only.

Figure 10. Number of Service Sector Employees

Section 10

Census of Services

Data: Section 10 presents selected series on service industries in Illinois for Census years 1967, 1972, 1977, 1982 and 1987. Only establishments with a payroll are included in the tables.

Not all counties and statistical areas in Illinois are presented in the tables in this section. No data were available for the geographic areas that are missing.

Source: 1987 Census of Selected Service Industries, Geographic Area Series for Illinois, Bureau of the Census, US Department of Commerce. These data are primarily gathered via mailed census forms completed by various-sized establishments.

Comparability: The data are not directly comparable to the Service Industries data in Section 9 of the 1989 Abstract, because of changes in SIC classifications. The next Census of Services will be taken in 1992. Data by county will be available in 1995.

Section 10 data are not directly comparable to employment data in Sections 5, 6, 7, and 9 because the methods used to collect the data and the definition of employment differ across sources. For an explanation of these differences, refer to the note in the Introduction of this book.

Footnotes: (NA) Data not available.

(F) First year to be included in series.

*Illinois portion only.

Section 11

Census of Population & Housing

Data: Section 11 contains population data for census years 1970 and 1980 by geographic area, sex, age, race, and marital status along with selected housing information.

Source: These data were extracted from the Census of Population and Housing, Bureau of the Census, US Department of Commerce.

Comparability: These data are identical to the Population data in Section 10 of the 1989 Abstract. The most recent Census of Population was taken in April 1990. County level data from the 1990 Census should be available in April 1991.

Footnotes: *Illinois portion only.

Section 12

Building Permits

Data: Section 12 presents building permit data by county for 1979 and 1985-1989. Data for number of buildings, number of housing units, and construction costs for privately owned residential, industrial, and professional buildings are presented.

Source: Annual Summary Report of Building Permits Issued, Bureau of the Census, US Department of Commerce.

Comparability: The Building Permits section in this publication are comparable to Section 11 in the 1989 Abstract.

Footnotes: *Illinois portion only.

Section 13

Consumer Price Indexes & Inflation Rates

Data: Section 13 presents annual Consumer Price Indexes (CPI) for the US, Chicago, St. Louis, and the North Central region for the years 1978 through August, 1990. Also, corresponding year-to-year inflation rates (for example, inflation for the period 1988 to 1989) are presented. The price data are for all urban consumers (CPI-U), all items, with a base year of 1982-1984.

Source: CPI Detailed Report, Bureau of Labor Statistics, US Department of Labor.

Comparability: These data are not strictly comparable to CPI data presented in Section 12 of the 1989 Abstract because of changes in the definitions of city sizes A, B, C, and D (see footnotes).

² Inflation rates are computed using Table 13-1. The inflation rate for the period 1988 to 1989, for example, is computed as:

$$[(CPI_{1989} - CPI_{1988}) / CPI_{1988}] \times 100$$

Commercial Banking Statistics

Data: Section 14 presents Illinois commercial bank balance sheet data for 1989 including figures on total assets, liabilities and their components.

Source: Board of Governors, Federal Reserve System.

Comparability: These data are comparable to banking data presented in Section 13 of the 1989 Abstract.

Footnotes: ¹ Includes only insured commercial banks in Illinois.

² Includes the assets of foreign offices for banks with facilities abroad.

³ Market values are reported for all securities categories.

⁴ Includes all loans to US and non-US addresses.

⁵ Includes all loans, not secured by real estate, to individuals for medical expenses, personal taxes, vacations, consolidation of nonbusiness debts; for the purchase of private passenger automobiles, household appliances, furniture, trailers, boats, mobile homes, etc. Includes credit extended through credit card plans, bank check credit, other revolving credit, and special overdraft credit.

⁶ Calculated by subtracting federal funds purchased from federal funds sold.

⁷ Includes the liabilities of foreign offices for banks with facilities abroad.

⁸ All deposit categories include deposits at domestic offices only.

⁹ IPC = Individuals, Partnerships, and Corporations.

¹⁰ Non-transaction accounts include money market deposit accounts, savings deposits subject to restrictions of three withdrawals or transfers a month, savings deposits subject to no more than three transfers a month for purposes of covering overdrafts, other savings deposits not classified as transaction accounts, and all time deposits with original maturities of seven days or more that are not classified as transaction accounts.

¹Gross Receipts

²Net Receipts

³Public utility receipts for July 1985-Dec. 1988 do not include revenues from the interstate message tax introduced in FY 86. These receipts were paid into a protest fund due to a court challenge. They have since been transferred to the General Revenue Fund. These transfers are not reflected in these tables. Beginning in January 1989, interstate message tax receipts were received directly into the General Revenue Fund and are now included in the totals.

*The authority for control of state accounts was transferred from the Office of Finance to the Comptroller's Office in 1974. This changed the accounting methods and categories so that data prior to FY 1974 is not comparable to later data.

Section 16

Estimated Retail Sales

Data: Section 16 presents estimates of retail sales by county for the years 1984 through 1989.

Source: Sales are estimated by the Bureau of Economic and Business Research, University of Illinois using county/ municipal tax receipts reported in "Kind of Business Reports" obtained from the Department of Revenue, State of Illinois.

Comparability: These data are comparable to data presented in Section 15 of the 1989 Abstract.
